

MAX HAMMONS

LET'S DO BIG

Hello! My name is Max Hammons. I am a recent graduate of Point Loma Nazarene University here in sunny San Diego, California. I love music, surfing, excessively large cali burritos, puppies, and all things graphic design.

THESE ARE SOME OF MY SKILLS

COLLABORATION is one of my favorite things to do with people I work with. It's amazing to see what other people's perspectives and ideas bring to the work and how much more we are able to accomplish together.

COMMUNICATION must happen client to designer and designer to designer. The more clearly the communication, more successful the project will be for the client. I communicate because finding out and solving client needs and problems is my job as a designer.

THINKING BIG means picturing outside the screen, thinking about harmony of whole visual systems, and thinking about more than just the present. I think big because there's so much more to explore and realize out in the world than I or anyone else has imagined yet. Let's go find it all!

THIS IS HOW I HELPED THEM

Worked with a variety of clients on various projects, including books, educational publications, photo editing, and packaging.

Designed web elements for clients (with a focus on those in the surf industry), which allowed them to better market products digitally.

Assisted in and designed several human-centered brand identities, including applications for cities, companies, and corporations.

Designed garments and posters promoting Point Loma Nazarene University's student fan section.

Built and maintained a unified and continuous identity platform, which increased brand equity and sales.

Created and printed all output and production art and maintained and managed all client art.

Worked with a team to increase sales as well as create positive customer relations with guests.
